<input type="checkbox"/> Master of Divinity Degree (2 year program) The Master of Divinity (M.Div.) is the basic professional degree for ministry. With a balanced integration of three components--biblical literature, theological/historical studies and the practices of ministry--the M.Div. students are trained to be Spirit-filled, biblically based, historically informed, socially and ethically accountable, theologically responsible and skillfully enabled ministers of Jesus Christ.	<input type="checkbox"/> Master of Theology Degree (3 year program) The Master of Theology (Th.M. or M.Th.) is considered by the Association of Theological Schools to be the minimum educational credential for teaching theological subjects in accredited schools. The degree is usually earned after the Master of Divinity (M.Div.) or an equivalent of three years of graduate studies in theology. This degree can range from a one or two years of specialized advanced studies in theological research. It may or may not require comprehensive subject exams and a research thesis. The Th.M. is usually designed as an advanced academic degree with an	<input type="checkbox"/> Doctoral of Theology Degree Doctor of Theology (in Latin Doctor Theologiae, abbreviated D.Th. or Th.D.) is a terminal academic degree in theology. It is a research degree, involving the publication of an original contribution to scholarship in the form of a dissertation, that is for most purposes the equivalent of a Doctor of Philosophy in Theology or a similar discipline. Th.D. programs are usually designed for theological scholarship within a religious tradition (most often, Christian), whereas Ph.D. programs are usually designed to study religious issues in the larger context of the liberal arts and humanities.
